

Photography

After moving back into Harrisburg for family reason, I just had to really take a good examination of what is it now that I really want to do.

I've climbed the corporate ladder.

Was it all that I thought it was gonna be? The answer was no. So after about a year or so driving school bus, I decided I need really to pursue something that I really want to do. Of course it came back to photography. So I was like, well, where can I go for some training in that?

So, I decided to come to HACC. I know for sure I would never be where I'm at if it had not been coming to HACC and having this experience not only with the professors here, but as well as my fellow students.

They give you that ability to be able to see what you can be. Now it's up to you to work at it and fulfill it.

Once you do that, you're successful.

That is what HACC's all about.

And I am just ecstatic, I am so happy to have been a student and still continue to be a part of this program.