RIBBON CUTTING

On Thursday, July 14 the York County Economic Alliance (YCEA) celebrated the opening of HACC York’s welding lab with a ribbon cutting event. Local legislators, business leaders and community members joined HACC staff and faculty in the festivities. Mr. Joseph Hutchinson, welding instructor, explained the machinery and provided demonstrations.

CAREER SERVICES CORNER

The York Rescue Mission will partner with HACC York to provide professional dress clothing to students at no charge to them.

This clothing is appropriate for many career fields including, trades, healthcare, office professional and others. The York Rescue Mission’s Economy Store has male and female clothing available at their York City location.

There is no referral process and this is a great option for students who do not meet the requirements for other programs in the area, or for students who aren’t able to wait or take the time needed for those programs. Students in need of professional clothing should contact Career Services at 717-801-3219 or bsschwab@hacc.edu.

Have extra clothing you no longer need? The York Rescue Mission accepts donations of clothing and other items. Check out http://www.yorkrescuemission.org for more details.

HACC York Campus Career Services will assist in the re-entry planning process along with about 70 other agencies for returning citizens.

Returning citizens are individuals who have been incarcerated in York County or State prison and are entering the York community. This process involves creating a strategic plan for services which include education and employment services to meet the needs of this population. Along with planning and program development, the collation has reviewed data of existing programs which are beneficial to returning citizens.

According to data from the Department of Corrections on employment programs, 65% persons attending HACC’s Job Skills Training Program at the York County Prison were not incarcerated within 3 years of completing the program. HACC’s program has the second highest success rate out of all programs reviewed. This data is promising and shows the importance of partnerships to aid returning citizens as they reenter the community.

MAMAVA IS HERE!

WHY DOES HACC HAVE A LACTATION STATION?

- Because some nursing mothers prefer a private space to breastfeed.
- Because some nursing mothers need to pump regularly so they can provide milk for their baby at a later time.
- Because this provides a sanitary location.
- Because HACC recognizes the importance of providing support for mothers and their children.
- Because breastfeeding is a normal process and has been part of raising humans since humans have existed.

While HACC does provide this station as a courtesy to breastfeeding mothers, women are free to breastfeed wherever they are comfortable.

This lactation station is provided courtesy of City of York Bureau of Health and HACC, Central Pennsylvania’s Community College.

WELCOME

Please join the office of Academic Affairs in welcoming four new staff members to their team!

Jessica Layton returns as the administrative office specialist to the campus associate dean. Since leaving HACC in 2013, Jessica has been busy being a mom. Charlotte is now three and her hobbies include NOT sitting still, having to do everything “on her own”, and performing ballet twirls in the middle of pretty much any store they enter! Jessica spent nearly two years at Dallastown Middle school as the assistant to the assistant principal. She acted as a front office secretary, attendance secretary, and discipline secretary. Jessica is happy to be back and looks forward to catching up and getting to know everyone!

Theresa Witkowski joined the Office of Academic Affairs team as the administrative office specialist to the campus dean on July 25. She comes from the Office of Human Resources in Harrisburg. Theresa is a HACC-York Campus graduate with an associate’s degree in Business Studies, and she is excited about transferring to her home campus. Theresa has a passion for spending time with her family, gardening, kayaking, painting, and repurposing old items. She looks forward to volunteering at her new campus community.

Marla Wilson returns to HACC York as a part-time administrative office technician. Marla completed her bachelor’s degree in English at Muhlenberg College and also has a master’s degree in developmental reading. Prior to her time at HACC, Marla taught seventh grade and tutored at Huntington Learning Center. Marla started at HACC as an adjunct instructor for developmental reading and later served as a professional tutor in the Writing Center. In 2013, she accepted a position as the administrative office technician but left in 2015 to pursue a different career. When not at work, Marla enjoys spending time with her husband and two children. She loves to read, garden, ride bike, hike, and travel. She has two dogs and a hamster.

Stephanie Baranik joins HACC as a part-time administrative office technician. She is a 2015 HACC graduate with an Associate’s degree in Administrative Office Management. Steph worked as a student worker at the Midtown campus, and following graduation, worked at the HACC York Bookstore. Steph feels blessed to work at the school where she attended because she is already familiar with the buildings, classes, and the professors. She enjoys seeing her former professors coming into the faculty bay where she now works.

Stephanie recently got engaged and enjoys telling people that her future husband will graduate from CCBC this spring with a degree in Mortuary Science. He will then be taking the state board test to become a licensed funeral director. Not everyone can say they’re engaged to a mortician!
