The following article was recently posted on the Bell Socialization Services website. One more reason to be HACC Proud!

When Professor James Schadewald reached out to Bell’s Community Engagement office a couple years ago to invite someone from the agency to speak to his Psychology class at the York campus of Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC), he not only welcomed representatives to his class, he took things a step further.

Encouraging his students to take a small but active role in making a positive impact in the lives of individuals receiving services at Bell, Schadewald creatively incorporates charitable outreach into their semester coursework. Not sure how much they’d participate, he’s been impressed that year after year, students go above and beyond.

“I am so impressed with the students,” Schadewald said, “They only needed one item to get one point on their exam but many brought in three or more items and when I told them that they only get one point they would frequently respond “I know but they need so much more than one item”. I am blessed to work at HACC with such generous and socially minded students. They humble me and make me proud every day.”

CONGRATULATIONS!

Thank you to the SGA who recently held a bake sale to support the York Campus Emergency Assistance Fund.

WELCOME NURSING CLASS OF 2017

The HACC York Nursing program welcomed the Class of 2017, as they began their journey to professional nursing in orientation sessions which were held on April 6th and 7th. The program objectives were to present the students with a realistic look into the challenges and professional expectations of the clinical program; as well as, identifying those resources and techniques which will be vital in meeting the challenge and ultimately being successful.

Shelly Blanchette, Heather Burns, Amie Brown, Crystal Myers and Lori Shoemaker, presented the importance of teamwork; as well as, the advisement and counseling resources available to students at the campus. Allyson Valentine and Laura Wukovitz, presented concepts of networking and introduced the students to professional literature resources available within our library. Dan Houloose discussed the academic challenges that are commonly experienced with nursing students and discussed time management, and study skills that are best practice for success; as well as, identified the process of acquiring tutor assistance.

Supported by the facilities staff, the bookstore staff, and many others, the nursing department was able to present our students with information that will allow for a smooth transition into the clinical curriculum.

The evening gave us another reason to be #HACCYORK proud.

Congratulations to the students – 35 in the day program and 36 in the evening program - who will begin the HACC York Nursing clinical program, on May 26th.

The Spring Arts Splash kicked off a wonderful night of visual art including sculpture, photography, drawing, and painting from HACC York student artists. Following that, students performed their annual choral concert which featured contemporary favorites and new spins on old tunes. Immediately following the choral concert was an open mic where students and community members, including York’s Poet Laureate, Christine Lincoln, performed poems, songs, and short stories.

RACE AGAINST RACISM

On Saturday, April 25, about 20 York Campus students, staff and faculty members participated in the York YWCA Race Against Racism. The team was sponsored by the York Campus Community Service Club.
HACC CON

This April, you may have noticed some buzz around an event called HACC Con. HACC Con was the result of a collaboration between numerous faculty and departments. This event ballooned from the 15 students that participated in it last semester to over 175 students this April. At this event, students presented their research either through a table top trifold session or through a 15 minute presentation on stage. HACC Con, this Spring, featured 25 presentations and over 50 poster sessions over two days. Examples of a few topics included: How women are portrayed in Hip Hop, How Facebook is the new format for which we seek out soap opera like drama, the phenomenon of Disney’s Frozen and what makes the songs so catchy, Why being a zombie apocalypse prepper isn’t such a bad thing, and how today’s comic book heroes mirror ancient literary heroes like Beowulf and Achilles (just to name a few).

Learning outcomes for the initiative include raising expectations for academic rigor and developing research and critical analysis skills, building students’ sense of self-efficacy, establishing mentoring relationships with numerous faculty and staff outside of the classroom, and encouraging the use of college resources like the Writing Center and the Library.

HACC Con will again be integrated into the Spring 2016 semester. If anyone is interested in how they can integrate HACC Con into their classes, please contact Allyson Valentine afvalent@hacc.edu or Errol Wizda ejwiza@hacc.edu for more information.
The READ poster contest was a success! The library was overwhelmed with fabulous entries. All monies raised went to the Steve Mundis Memorial Award. The winner is ….

Congratulations, and thanks to all who participated!
