

Wastewater Treatment Plant Operator

Municipalities benefit by having HACC-trained employees

HACC Workforce Training has partnered with CET Engineering Services and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to offer this DEP Approved program for wastewater treatment plant employees who are candidates to become certified operators.

The benefits

As a municipal official, you are legally responsible for having trained, qualified employees. HACC's DEP-approved training program gives successful graduates the necessary skills to deal with 21st century technology. In addition, a wave of retiring baby boomers is creating the need for trained replacements.

With HACC's DEP-approved training to become a wastewater treatment plant operator, your employee will:

- Have the skills and knowledge to deal with advancements in wastewater treatment technology that have made the work more technical, with a greater emphasis on environmental impact.
- Be able to assume today's required significant role in shaping the future environment of communities, which affects all residents.
- Gain mechanical understanding of a wastewater treatment plant as well as problem-solving skills necessary for operating the plant.
- Have the option to take the DEP Certification Exam, which puts those who successfully pass the exam on the fast-track toward becoming a DEP Licensed Operator.
