These classes – PSYC 101 General Psychology in China and PSYC 209 Life Cycle Development in China – are fully online courses with a 10-day trip to China. Both classes follow the same travel itinerary. The trip will give students opportunities to learn how human development may be shaped by the culture in which one lives.

Students will take a closer look at local people’s lives through visits to a children’s palace, possibly an elementary/middle/high school, a local resident’s home and a senior citizens’ retirement facility, and via conversions with Chinese students and parents. Activities also include visiting significant sites such as the Great Wall, the Forbidden City, the Summer Palace and the Terra Cotta Warriors Museum.

During travel, students in both classes will be required to conduct a mini-research project and collect data through personal observations, surveys and/or local interviews.

Both PSYC 101 and PSYC 209 are required classes for many majors at HACC, and they may work as transfer electives for many other majors.
